Great Books on the Download

News Release – May 2, 2010

Sue Buckley, Managing Editor, Paperbox Books received recognition as the 'Editor of the Month' from Fictionista Workshop, an online writing community.

A brief summary of some of the nominator's comments were included with the award notification.

Sue is an editor for Paper Box Books, a new e-publisher that started up in Vancouver, BC. I met her at a NaNo event and added her to twitter. Earlier this month she (via Paper Box) offered to read and give helpful comments/critiques to anyone willing to send in the first 10 pages of the manuscript. The comments on mine were returned in less than 24 hours with detailed and VERY helpful insights. Her passion for helping authors get published is inspiring.

She's been very easy to talk to. I've exchanged several emails with her about various different subjects concerning writing and editing and publishing. Her responses are always well thought out and personal, no chain letters for Sue!

The company she works for is just starting up. It is all about working with the authors and Sue personifies that. It would be great to see her get the recognition she deserves for the time that she puts in.

The Managing Editors at PaperBox Books are especially pleased because these comments as they validate everything they are trying to accomplish as a e-publisher.

They also send out a special thank you to the nominator who also works hard in the writing community to encourage new writers (and editors).
